OF INTEREST TO GARDEN CLUBS

I offer a most attractive price to members grouping their orders. In my rich composted soil I have many fine varieties which multiply most rapidly. Having a surplus of these I am offering 3 for the listed price of 1 plant. Others carry a discount of 1/3 off the listed price on orders totaling $25.00. A $50.00 order a discount 50% is allowed. Many dealers do not pay postage or express on whole-sale orders. They come to you postpaid or express charges. These same discount are allowed to P. T. A. groups. Many school grounds would be more attractive with a bed of hemerocallis (hybrid daylilies) the-so-easy-to-care-for plants. Pardon the suggestion, have the pupils sell a portion of the plant order to garden lovers at retail prices, the profits will pay for the plants held for the school garden.

Join the Hemerocallis Society, only $3.00 yearly which gives you the Year Book, Contact DAISY L. FERRICK, 416 Arter Avenue, Topeka, Kansas.

A worthwhile book HEMEROCALLIS by Phillip G. Corliss, M. D. should be in the library of all Garden Clubs. It contains much valuable information. Dr. Corliss can be reached at Corliss Building, Somerton, Arizona.

Early in 1953 a list of names was sent to Mr. Tuggles the Registrar of new names for the Hemerocallis Society. He checked the list without delay and advised the names available for registration. Many daylilies due to the mild temperature bloomed much earlier than in normal temperatures. One of the requirements is the applicant is to state the blooming period. For example, EE. Extra early. 5 other blooming periods to VL. Very late. Being impossible to comply with this rule until August the 100 varieties will then be registered and named. This list will be void after August 15th, 1954. Until that date the price of the plants on this list, the 50 evergreen and the 50 deciduous varieties will be $1.00 each in lots of 5 or more, each a different variety. The Gardens will keep a record of the plant numbers and advise the purchaser the registered plant name. We feel this bargain offer will be the means of introducing daylilies in many gardens. If so our loss is worthwhile.

SUGGESTIONS TO BEGINNERS

A few suggestions to beginners growing HEMEROCALLIS

Many commercial growers are turning to compost for plant food. In clay soil plants do best with roots covered but 1 inch. Should a long dry spell come it is well to draw up a few inches of soil to prevent evaporation of the moisture which may come up from below. The growth and rapid increase of plants proves it's worth, compost in clay soil mellows it and holds moisture. In sandy soil, much of your plant food is washed by heavy rainfall below the root system. Compost will prevent this loss. Oak leaves have unknown elements which scientist cannot solve, when I purchased this hill nothing would grow but elm trees, no grass or weeds. Now it is the richest black soil. Made so with compost. Rains was the impurities from the air which gives plant life much plant food. A few elements carried to earth cause a slight acid condition. It is well to sprinkle the soil each 5th year with powdered lime. An alkaline soil need no lime.
